

Up The Creek Without A Paddle At Gorgeous Gorge

The Carnarvon Gorge Guide Book lists the walk to the end of the gorge and side tracks as a one day walk for masochists. IF we had read the guide before the walk we probably would not have done what we now refer to as the Carnarvon Half Marathon which includes 40 plus river crossings (mostly half washed away from the recent floods) over the 25 odd kilometre long trail.

Like Stanley Laurel and Oliver Hardy - the great African explorers - we trekked the mighty gorge and lived to tell the tale. We knew we were alive, muscles twanged and arches fell as we bested the worst that nature could throw at us.
